Greater Manchester, United Kingdom – 15th April 2024: 'Hail The Crown' begins with menacing grunts of fuzzed-up rhythm guitars and bass slowly building in tempo with each blow of the drum. Disjointed lead guitars wail over the top, screaming faster and faster until they break into feedback and, boom! The track erupts into the main riff. Ste's laid-back vocals flow over the rioting instruments, singing of police brutality and a lack of trust in them to police peaceful protests and vigils. Ste's relaxed vocals continue into chorus which contrast with the now heavily amped-up guitars and the actual meaning of the lyrics.

Lead singer and rhythm guitarist, Ste Wilson, says "The track's intro represents the build up to police aggression at protests where the crowd is acting non-violently, the whole track is a protest against police brutality and the monarchy. This track is important to me as the government tries to clamp down on our right to protest".

Hail The Crown will feature on the band's, yet to be named, debut album, and they will be playing the track at gigs from now on.
